

Those who nominated her say:

“Although there are certainly many other professors at Brandeis who are passionate about their subject matter, what makes Professor Levenson unique is that she embodies the essence of education in her relationships with students both inside and outside the classroom.”

“The former high school teacher, principal, superintendent, and Brandeis alum not only teaches teaching, she lives it.”