Prerequisite: FREN 106b or the equivalent, or permission of the instructor.
This course examines how China has often been represented by French writers and artists as the Other in order to question their own society, artistic practices, and political order. We will also wonder if the new generation of francophone writers born in China offers a different vision of their country of origin. The course includes novels, poetry, movies, and paintings.