Register this upcoming spring in FREN 105a and you will examine the cultural and practical elements of the French workplace. The course is designed for students who wish to better understand the complexity of the French social model as well as the distinctive cultural aspects of the French vision of work and business. Students will gain the communication skills necessary for entering into and advancing in the French-speaking workplace.

Prerequisites: FREN 104b, FREN 105a or the equivalent. Students enrolling for the first time in a French and Francophone Studies course at Brandeis should refer to brandeis.edu/registrar. Students who have already taken FREN 105a can also enroll in this new course and this will count towards their Minor/Major.
