Italian Studies at Brandeis presents:
The New England Contemporary Italian Film Festival
Sponsored by the Italian Consulate of Boston

Tuesday, November 17, 2015
7:00 – 9:00 PM
Lown Auditorium (Room 002)

Pizza e biscotti italiani!

Nina, a girl from the south of Italy, has to travel far from home to get her first job as a teacher. She is sad, because she is having a serious love affair with a young upper-middle class man. They promise that nothing will change between them. What she finds is completely different from what she imagined. It's much worse: a school isolated on a high mountain plain, wild children, people she has nothing in common with and a hostile environment. She sticks it out because of pride and because Francesco loves her for her courage, until one cold February day when everything goes wrong, everything seems lost forever...