Originating with the Aztecs, the Day of the Dead is a unique blend of Mesoamerican and Christian rituals. Traditions vary from region to region, but generally families gather at cemeteries to tend and decorate the graves of their departed loved ones and remember them by telling stories, eating their favorite foods, and dancing in their honor. Many families build altars at home, decorated with flowers and food. A festive and social occasion, the holiday welcomes the return of those who have died and recognizes the human cycle of life and death.

Monday, October 31st, 2:30-4:30pm, SCC atrium

Sponsored by Latin American and Latino Studies