Here are a few simple things that you can do to extend the impact:

1. Attend a Brandeis American Sign Language club meeting:
   - Learn some ASL, talk more about Deaf culture, and discuss current events in the Deaf community!

2. Enroll in the Brandeis course “Sociology of Disability” (HSSP 192B):
   - This course focuses on “tracing the history of disability and the way people with disabilities are seen and unseen, and see themselves.”

3. Attend the Museum of Fine Arts’ ASL night during Deaf Awareness Month in September:
   - This night is “a celebration welcoming members of the Deaf community and friends. This evening highlights and features the art, language, and culture of the community. Coinciding with Deaf Awareness Month, the program includes American Sign Language tours and spotlight talks, performances, art-making activities, and more.”

4. Attend a Boston Area ASL meet-up:
   - “This is an easy-going, casual, ASL get-together to meet people who enjoy American Sign Language and Deaf culture, who want to brush up on their signing skills, and want to learn more ASL by using it as often as possible (all levels welcome).”
