

Jeff Scheuer is a New York writer and the author of two books about media and politics. His work has appeared in many newspapers and journals including Dissent, the Fletcher Forum, the Gettysburg Review, New York History, and in the Encyclopedia of New York City. Jeff's first book, The Sound Bite Society: How Television Helps the Right and Hurts the Left (1999), was a Choice "Outstanding Academic Title." His second book was "The Big Picture: Why Democracies Need Journalistic Excellence" (2007). He has taught in the Dept. of Media and Communication at NYU, and is a series editor for "Democracy and the News" for Praeger Publishers.