THE SPEAKER

Stephen M. Golant, Ph.D., is a Professor in the Department of Geography at the University of Florida (1980-present). Dr. Golant is a gerontologist and geographer who has been conducting research on housing, care, mobility, community and transportation needs of older adults through much of his academic career. He has published widely in books and journals. He has appeared on national television news programs.

He brings a distinct view to issues of housing and care, at least in part resulting from his disciplined geography orientation to problems that are often approached from more familiar perspectives. He has reviewed many different aspects of housing for older people and will be discussing residential normalcy in his remarks.

THE RESPONDENT

James J. Callahan, Ph.D., is Professor Emeritus at the Heller School for Social Policy and Management, Brandeis University. He is a past director of the Policy Center on Aging there. He has served as Secretary of Elder Affairs, Commissioner of Mental Health and Medicaid Director for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Dr. Callahan is expert on social policy and aging, has published widely and received many awards for intellectual achievements and public service. He is a recipient of Massachusetts Gerontology Association's Louis Lowy Award.
