The panel addressed the following: What kind of training and education do industrial labs seek in job applicants? What knowledge should applicants possess? experience? skills? creativity? business knowledge? How does research done in industry compare to that done in universities? How common are collaborations between industry and academic researchers? What makes a successful collaboration?