The 40th New England Complex Fluids Workshop September 18, 2009 at Brandeis University. The concept of these quarterly workshops is to gather researchers in the field of Soft Matter who work within a two hour drive of Boston in order to promote collaboration and sharing of resources.

The 40th NECFW featured two hours of “soundbites”; five minute summaries of work in progress. It is surprising how much information can be conveyed in such a short time. Equally important was the discussion and networking during breaks and lunch.
