This course visits an archipelago of texts from drama and travel narrative to poetry and the novel. We will use fictions about islands to explore questions about literature – the enabling constraints of form, literary experimentation, and solitary and social reading.