Join Marla Frederick for a discussion of her research on understanding how African American and African descended producers, distributors and consumers of religious broadcasting approach and make meaning of mediated religion.

November 10, 2015

Breakfast with Professor Frederick
10:00 – 10:50 am, Mandel 128

Lecture
11:00 am-12:20 pm, Mandel G-12

Marla Frederick is Professor of African and African American Studies and the Study of Religion at Harvard University. She wrote Between Sundays: Black Women and Everyday Struggles of Faith and co-authored Local Democracy Under Siege: Activism, Public Interests and Private Politics.

Sponsored by the Program in Religious Studies, the Department of African and Afro-American Studies and the American Studies Program.