SHOW & TELL

Myth, Tourism, and Jewish Hellenism

In Greco-Roman antiquity Jews had their own displays where visitors could see and admire objects from mythical times. Very much like pagan culture, Jewish Hellenism, too, developed a tourism of sorts at sights of miracle and wonder.

Painting: Paul Gustave Doré, Andromède
Andromeda chained to a rock which Greek sources often locate in Joppe (modern Jaffa, Israel)

Sponsors
The Kraft-Hiatt Fund and Program in Religious Studies
Cosponsor
The Classics Department