Department of
African and Afro-American Studies

Objectives

The department welcomes all members of the student body who have an interest in Africa and/or African-America. The major is arranged through consultation with the departmental advisor or another professor. Majors may ask for guidance in the selection of elective courses with related content or approach within their chosen disciplines.

Requirements for the Major

A. Required of all candidates: eight semester courses from among the AAAS and cross-listed courses below. One of the eight courses must be AAAS 5a [Introduction to African and Afro-American Studies], which should be taken as the first AAAS course, as it provides an introduction to themes and methods of analysis.

B. At least one course will be taken in each of the following areas: social science, humanities, and history.

C. At least four courses will be taken in one of the following disciplines as a field of specialization: literature, music, history, political science, sociology, and economics. A candidate may elect a five-course interdisciplinary focus on Africa or Afro-American affairs as a specialization. Always confirm your choice of specialization with the department academic advisor.

D. Five of the eight required courses must be from within the department (e.g., from the AAAS courses below). No course with a final grade below C- can count toward the major.

E. Candidates for departmental honors must satisfactorily complete AAAS 99d [Senior Research].

Requirements for the Minor

Five semester courses are required, including the following:

A. AAAS 5a [Introduction to African and Afro-American Studies]. This should be taken as the first AAAS course, as it provides an introduction to themes and methods of analysis.

B. AAAS 70a [Introduction to Afro-American History].

C. The remaining three courses will be selected from among the department's offerings in literature, history, political science, and music.

Students are required to declare the minor in AAAS no later than the beginning of their senior year. Each student will be assigned a departmental advisor by the undergraduate advising head.

Department of
American Studies

Objectives
American studies takes an interdisciplinary approach to the culture, society, politics, institutions, identities, thoughts, values, and behavior of Americans, in all their variety, and to the critical issues that confront the United States domestically and internationally. Using materials central to the disciplines of American studies—film, literature, popular and material culture, music, art and architecture, oral history, social and intellectual history—the major is designed to provide students with an educated awareness of the way the United States, viewed as a civilization, frames the lives, aspirations, and self-perceptions of its citizens. Typically, students who enroll anticipate careers in law, business, public service, communications, education, journalism, museum work, and teaching, at all levels. As the sponsor of the programs in legal studies, film studies, journalism, and environmental studies, the American studies major aims to provide a broad background to those areas and welcomes students who seek active engagement with the contemporary world through firm grounding in a sound liberal arts education.

How to Become a Major
Normally, students declare their major in their sophomore year and attempt to complete the three required courses (see below) by the end of the first semester of their junior year, or at the latest, the end of their junior year. Working with a departmental advisor, students are urged to develop a coherent selection of electives tailored to their particular interests and gifts. Because of the close working relationship between the department and its resident programs [law, film, journalism, environmental studies] students often offer several courses in joint satisfaction of their major (American studies) and their program. Students wishing to earn departmental honors must write a senior thesis in a full year course, AMST 99d. Special opportunities are available for supervised internships (AMST 92a,b). Many majors gain a valuable cross-cultural perspective on America by studying abroad in their junior year.
