Shakespeare

Summer 2008

Week of June 2: Introduction, Much Ado About Nothing

June 9: Henry IV, part I, Measure for Measure

June 16: Measure for Measure, King Lear

June 23: King Lear, Winter's Tale

June 30: Winter's Tale Final paper due

This is (pending approval) a writing intensive class. Accordingly you will be assigned to post on Latte about every play that we read (twice on King Lear) and to respond to at least one post or previous response on each play. I will respond to your posts and responses (and of course you may respond to my responses as well.) Your final paper will derive from the writing that you do in these posts and responses, so it should be a revision of some initial post or set of posts you've submitted, a revision that will of course take the replies to your initial posts into account, one way or another, and may also include versions of your own replies to others.\\

Don't plagiarize, cheat, or cite research without attribution.

Please see me if you need any accommodation for a disability documented with Brandeis.
