PROFILE

Dr. Bouvard received her Ph.D from Harvard University, her MFA from Boston University and was for many years a Professor of Political Science and Creative Writing at Regis College. She has taught poetry workshops at the Radcliffe Seminars and has been a writer in residence at the University of Maryland, and a Scholar at the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study. She is a Resident Scholar at the Women's Studies Research Center at Brandeis University. She has authored books in the fields of politics, psychology, women's studies, poetry, spirituality, and has edited two anthologies, all connected by a concern for human rights and the human condition.
