

Caitlin Gillespie

Caitlin Gillespie is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Classical Studies at Brandeis University. Her research centers on defiant women in the early Roman empire, and publications have examined imperial women including Livia, Agrippina the Elder, Messalina, Agrippina the Younger, and Poppaea, as well as non-elite women such as Epicharis and non-Roman women including Boudica. Her first book, Boudica: Warrior Woman of Roman Britain, was published in 2018 with Oxford University Press. This conference is her first foray into reception studies.
