Those who nominated her this year say:

She is phenomenal at taking very difficult subject matter and making it accessible in a way that not only allows her students to understand it, but also allows them to own it and access it for their own research. She cares deeply, not only about the subject matter, but about her students.

Sarah Lamb is clearly very passionate about her field of study, and is able to convey that excitement to her students. She very much valued student ideas and encouraged students to think for themselves and come up with their own opinions and values. Outside of the classroom, she was very approachable and made time to meet with students outside of her standard office hours.

In the classroom, she engages in discussion which inspires students to participate. Professor Lamb continuously stimulates these discussions with readings, film clips and guest speakers, adding new lenses on topics that may seem to have come to a conclusion. With questioning and positive feedback she keeps students engaged.
