Office Hours: Friday 1-3pm

Short Description:
This course provides a systematic introduction to the interdisciplinary program in International and Global Studies (IGS). Although IGS 10a serves as the foundation course for an IGS major or minor, it is intended be a general liberal arts course—of interest to anyone seeking a better understanding of the processes and problems of the contemporary world.

Texts:
Two books have been ordered and made available in the Brandeis bookstore:
You may buy earlier editions of these books, but nothing before the 4th edition of Lechner or the 6th edition of Baylis. And be aware that chapter numbers in older editions may be different from those listed here. Make sure the content matches the theme of the week.
In addition, the course includes materials on the internet (with links in the syllabus) as well as materials posted on Latte (http://latte.brandeis.edu). The latter will also include copies of the PowerPoint presentation for each lecture, to be posted after each lecture is given.

Your final grade will be determined by how well you do in:
1. Quizzes and participation (20 percent)
2. A pair of take-home tests during the semester (each counting 25 percent);
3. A cumulative take-home final examination (30 percent)
The quizzes will be held at roughly two-week intervals. The deadlines for the tests (and attendance for the final) are non-negotiable. The only reasons to fail to complete an exam are: 1) you have been hospitalized or specifically instructed not to attend Brandeis classes or 2) a family member has been gravely injured or died, requiring you to leave campus. I will expect a full and convincing account in either case.
Note: Students with excused absences, including for exams or quizzes, must contact the TAs for makeup assignments.

Keeping Up with World Affairs
Our discussions will inevitably touch on current events; as a student of global affairs, it is essential that you keep up with them. I strongly recommend that you read a good daily newspaper, such as The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal, and a good weekly magazine such as The Economist. I also strongly recommend that you listen to the BBC Newshour whenever you can. It is broadcast on WBUR (90.9 FM) at 9 am weekdays. The BBC also has an excellent web site (http://www.bbc.co.uk) with podcasts of many of its shows.
Contacting Me
One of the downsides of a large class is that I am unable to respond to questions about course material via e-mail. I am, however, available for office hours: TBD. You may also write to and discuss issues with the teaching assistant assigned to you. The TAs will hold office hours as well, especially before tests.

Academic Honesty
Academic integrity is central to the mission of educational excellence at Brandeis University. Each student is expected to turn in work completed independently, except when assignments specifically authorize collaborative effort. It is not acceptable to use the words or ideas of another person – be it a world-class philosopher or your lab partner – without proper acknowledgement of that source. This means that you must use footnotes and quotation marks to indicate the source of any phrases, sentences, paragraphs, or ideas found in published volumes, on the internet, or created by another student. Violations of university policies on academic integrity, described in Section 3 of “Rights and Responsibilities,” may result in failure in the course or on the assignment, and could end in suspension from the University. If you are in doubt about the instructions for any assignment in this course, you must ask for clarification.

University Policy on Academic Accommodations
Brandeis seeks to welcome and include all students. If you are a student who needs accommodations as outlined in an accommodations letter, please talk with me and present your letter of accommodation as soon as you can. I want to support you. To provide test accommodations, I need the letter more than 48 hours in advance. I want to provide your accommodations but cannot do so retroactively. If you have questions about documenting a disability or requesting accommodations, please contact Student Accessibility Support (SAS) at 781.736.3470 or access@brandeis.edu.

Class Recording Policy
In this course, audio, and video recording of class activities, including lectures, discussions, and conversations, is not allowed. The primary reason for this is to ensure that both the instructor and students can freely engage in discussions and ask questions without concerns about their words being taken out of context and shared publicly. This policy is in accordance with the Massachusetts two-party consent law and aims to create a comfortable and open learning environment for all students.
If you were planning to make audio or video recordings for any valid reason, please reach out to Student Accessibility Support (SAS). They can assist you in arranging for a qualified note-taker or other suitable accommodations to support your learning needs.
